NEW REPUBLIC ATTACK SHUTS DOWN IMPERIAL COMS

The TIE Corps of the Emperor's Hammer are on high alert following an unprovoked physical and electronic attack by the New Republic.

Despite their underhanded efforts, the terrorist forces of the New Republic were quickly repulsed by the brave pilots of the Emperor's Hammer TIE Corps.

Sources indicate that the New Republic has become increasingly desperate, employing only antiquated starfighters and capital ships – no match for the state-of-the-art craft available to our heroic pilots, who were able to quickly defeat this latest act of unprovoked aggression by the Republic despite coming under limited electronic attack that left some minor sub-systems inoperable.

A source within the TIE Corps has claimed that despite the ineffective nature of the attack, it proved able to spread rapidly, and may have been implanted prior to the beginning of the assault, and recommends that all Imperial Citizens report any suspicious use of electronic devices to the nearest Imperial Officer immediately.

As a precautionary measure, all military communication systems and all inter-system data-networks are on full lockdown until such time as Imperial technicians can purge the virus implanted by Republic 'splicers'.

Alleged pic-cap intercepted before electronic attack – submitted by Imperial Intelligence.

Reports that a small number of Republic Starfighters and their attending Calamari cruisers escaped to hyperspace have been declared false by Emperor's Hammer officials, and the continuation or proliferation of such 'fake news' will be dealt with swiftly.

In an unrelated announcement, any unidentified vessels spotted within Imperial Space should be reported, in person (until such time as networks are restored).

The Imperial News Network is proud to be able to continue to bring you the latest news via the traditional method of paper and ink, so you may keep yourself informed without risking attack by the electronic saboteurs of the New Republic.
